Agreement of Verb Tense and Subject

REMEMBER – The tense of the verb tells us when something is happening.

Past Yesterday I played out.

Present Today I play out.

Future Tomorrow I will play out.

Task 1

Rewrite these sentences so that the subject and tense of the verb agree.

1. The boys are playing in a football match yesterday.

2. Karen is going to the cinema last week.

3. The girls are enjoying dancing when they go on holiday.

4. The fire crew fight a blaze yesterday at the shopping centre.

5. Last month Mum makes chocolate cake for my birthday tea.

6. The teacher said that tomorrow we painted some portraits.

7. Next week I ran in the school cross country team.

8. Today there was a sale and I get some new trainers.

Task Two

Can I change a passage of writing into a different tense?

Read the paragraph below.

Re-write the paragraph into your book or word process the sentences on a computer—changing the tense correctly into PAST tense.

For example, you will need to start by writing... Yesterday, I got up at...

Can you also change it into FUTURE tense?

I get up at 8:00 and have a wash and clean my teeth before I go downstairs to have my breakfast. I have cereal and milk, followed by a piece of toast. I collect my things together for school and set off about 8:30. I call for my friend Rob who lives two doors away and we walk to the shop. I sometimes buy a comic or some football cards, Rob supports Man U but I support Chelsea. We get to school at about quarter to nine and meet up with our other friends and discuss T.V. programmes or have a game of tig, something like that until the bell rings.
